

OPEN ACCESS STATEMENT

The online version of Researching Legal Futures: Towards Transdisciplinary Perspectives on Rights, Technology, and Global Change is freely available to readers and their institutions without charge.

Except where otherwise indicated, this book is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License \(CC BY-NC-ND 4.0\).

Under this license, users may copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format, provided that:

- the material is used for non-commercial purposes;
- the material is redistributed in unadapted form;
- appropriate credit is given to the chapter author(s), chapter title, book title, editors, publisher, and year of publication;
- the DOI or source URL and a link to the Creative Commons license are provided;
- any permitted changes are clearly indicated; and
- no additional legal terms or technological measures are imposed that restrict the uses permitted by the license.

When material is quoted, the relevant page number or page range should also be indicated.

Any use not permitted by this license, including commercial use or the distribution of adapted material, requires prior written permission from ADJURIS – International Academic Publisher and, where applicable, from any other relevant rights holder.

COPYRIGHT AND PUBLISHING RIGHTS

Copyright and publishing rights are governed by the respective book publishing agreements. Making this work available under a Creative Commons license does not constitute a waiver of copyright. It authorizes reuse only under the conditions stated above.